Snap is expanding its developer platform to let creators build face filters for the first time, the company said today.. (They were recently added back to the both Snapchat and Instagram after the platforms.. The templates, which range in complexity, include virtual baseball hats, face paint, and tools to attach three-dimensional objects to a user's head..) More than 30,000 lenses were created in the first two months, Snap says, earning more than 1 billion views.. , Snapchat added the ability to insert Giphy's library of animated GIFs into snaps; now, they can feature in lenses as well.. Four months after, which allowed creators to build the augmented reality objects that Snap calls "world lenses," Snap is releasing seven new templates into to let creators build digital masks.

In addition to new templates, the Lens Studio is also getting Giphy integration starting today.
